

Bible Stories Between Children & Their Parents

The Bible has remained as the world's best selling book for a long time. It is available in many languages and in different translations as well as in electronic, audio, visual and even cartoon versions that amplify the simple written text.

Many bible stories have occupied an important place in the lives of children but how many parents tell these to their children today? How do modern children respond to these stories? Many parents feel nervous about the meaning and presentation of bible stories and do not know how to respond to their children's questions.

Noah's Ark?

Adam & Eve?

David & Goliath?

Daniel & the Lion's Den?

Loaves & Fishes?

The Star of Bethlehem?

Are these Bible Stories still alive?

The Diocese of Southwell and Nottingham and the Queen's Foundation in Birmingham are sponsoring an enquiry into the use and meaning of Bible Stories in contemporary family life.

This project wishes to explore how Bible stories are told within the family context and to record the responses of children alongside their parents. In so doing, the Bible Story Project will also be encouraging parents to use the bible with their children.
